MULE SALE IS A GREAT SUCCESS.

MERCER COUNTY'S MULE "MAUDE" ON MISSION OF MERCY BRINGS $2,252.50.

Garrard county went "over the top" again last Saturday evening in the Red Cross Mule sale at the High School Auditorium. "Maude", the greatest yearling and easily the most famous and valuable mule in the world today, sold at public auction for $2,252.50.

The bidding was progressive; that is the last bidder paying the difference between his bid and the one previous. The last bid was made by Mr. A. D. Lee, of this county. A number of handsome bids were made by patriots outside of the county, who came to the sale and were unable to resist the enthusiasm which was contagious; Miss Martha C. Huber, of Louisville, who came down with a party of delightful people from Crab Orchard, was a contending bidder all through the evening, those accompanying her being; Mrs. Catherine Phillips, Mrs. C. W. Hagan, Miss Julia Higgins, Miss Nancy Willis, Miss Martha Miller, Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Herbert Spencer, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Mr. and Mrs. Englehart, of Lexington, all of whom took some part in the bidding success of the sale.

and added much inspiration to the "Maude" was there and looked pleased with every bid and showed her pleasure by giving a nod and an occasional "He-haw" when the applause became so manifest.

Beside the amount brought by "Maude" the sale of buttons containing her photo as a souvenir, brought in over two hundred and fifty dollars.

The receipts from this sale go to the Garrard county Chapter of the American Red Cross, and puts it in good financial shape for several months.

Chairman W. A. Farnau, is some "pawkins" when it comes to putting something good over for the Red Cross. His heart is in the work and we know the Local Chapter is very grateful to him for his loyal services, and his untiring energy which never lags in this worthy cause. We know that he will dislike to see this in print, but we have said it and its going to stick, and our hats are off to him.

The meeting was conducted by Judge L. L. Walker in his usual easy manner.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. Horace Turner, of Danville, a former Garrard county boy, and of whom we are justly proud, made a most excellent patriotic address, which was interrupted several times by enthusiastic applause. He referred to the great work being done by the American Red Cross. Compared with what France and Belgium have suffered, he said, the United States as yet has scarcely been touched; our financial resources are unlimited almost and will be used, if necessary to the last dollar, to win the war in which we are now engaged.

What he said about the pro-German in this country, was a plenty, nor did he mince any words. His address was by far the best we have heard here since the war began. Rev. H. S. Hudson gave a summary of the fine work done by the ladies of the Garrard county chapter and told of the large and heavy orders yet to be filled by Sept. 1st.

A splendid Lexington Band furnished some delightful music, mostly of patriotic nature, which was always applauded.

Another hit of the evening was the introduction of Hon. J. S. Haselden, "our Joe", as the auctioneer of the evening, everybody knows him and knows of his good work, who did it with the ease and grace that soon captivated the audience and caused the bidding to be spirited from the first. His work was greatly complimented. It took 16 Red Cross nurses to record the bidding, they being in charge of Mrs. Frank Marksbury.

Altogether it was an evening to be remembered and to be proud of, and the management desires to thank those who came and helped make the sale the greatest and most remarkable that has yet been held.

We also desire to thank Mercer county for the generous use of the mule and are ready to send her on her mission of mercy wherever the Mercer County Chapter may suggest. We understand she will be sold in Stanford about August 7th.

TWO GARRARD AUTO'S IN COLLISION NEAR RICHMOND.

While returning from Boonesboro last Sunday afternoon, the auto driven by Mr. J. L. Davis accompanied by Mrs. Davis and daughter, Miss Maude, and visitor, Mrs. George Case of Lexington, and Miss Ethel Walter, were run into at the bridge near Sherrow, by Walter Cox, of this city, resulting in slight injuries to all of the Davis party, some of them seriously.

The accident happened at a sharp turn in the road, and upon reaching this point Mr. Davis saw the approaching car and not taking a chance on meeting it in the bridge, stopped his car and drove close to the right side of the road, which runs parallel with the railroad, the latter being about twenty feet below and a perpendicular stone wall supporting the road at this point.

The approaching car struck the Davis machine, which was standing still, with such force that it was hurled partially around and backed over the embankment, turning turtle backward in its downward flight, before any of the occupants had a chance to escape. That any of them escaped seemed miraculous and Mr. Davis says he owes his life to a railroad rail which was supported by two posts at either end about two feet high, the car lighting up-side-down upon this rail, thus giving the occupants a chance to crawl from underneath.

Assistance was soon at hand and it was found that Mrs. Case was suffering with a broken leg, Mr. Davis with a dislocated arm, Miss Maude bruised badly, and Mrs. Davis escaped with only slight injuries. They were all taken to a Richmond hospital where Mrs. Case will remain until able to return to her home in Lexington.

Mr. Davis and his family returned Sunday night leaving their car at a local garage for repairs.

The Cox machine was slightly damaged and he claims that his brakes refused to work. In the car with Cox, was John Simpson, Simon Anderson, Wood Burnside and "Peg" Sanford of this city, who were on their way to Boonesboro. None of these were seriously hurt.

FINE LINCOLN FARM.

The farm of Caroline Logan Dunn and Walter Dunn, advertised to sell at public auction next Wednesday, July 31st, is said to be one of the best farms in Lincoln or Boyle county. The farm is well improved, well watered and highly productive. It is going to sell sure on the above date and some one will get a bargain. Take it from us.

WIRE CONTROL

ORDER ISSUED

President Wilson this week issued a proclamation taking over the telephone and telegraph lines of the nation. Government control will begin July 31, with Postmaster General Burleson in charge. The proclamation did not include wireless systems because the navy already controls them. Ocean cables also were not taken over because of contracts the companies have with foreign countries.

LOST—Large heavy blue army cape, with brass buttons; also khaki colored lady's rain coat. Reward if returned to this office. tf.

BUY FINE STOCK

Within the past week a number of our most prominent farmers and stock men have purchased and brought into this County a number of registered Angus cattle. These cattle will form a nucleus for herds which these gentlemen will establish, and will be of great benefit to the cattle industry of Central Kentucky. The Monmouth Review, Monmouth Ill., has the following to say in regard to the purchases:

"The fame of the fine stock which is bred in Warren County is steadily spreading to other states, and recently a herd of registered Angus cattle from the farm of T. H. Brent in Elision township was sold to stockmen from Kentucky, who when they saw the herd on the Brent farm determined to start such herds in their own county. The purchasers were E. C. McWhorter, E. L. Woods, J. B. Woods, and Woods Walker, who together bought 54 head at a fancy price.

NOTICE TO ALL

CRAB ORCHARD

SPRINGS SOLD.

Crab Orchard Springs, one of the most popular and best known summer resorts in Kentucky, has changed hands again, this time Louisville parties are behind the movement and it is sold that between $50,000 and $60,000 will be spent in improvements. C. W. Hagan, of Lebanon, who has been assisting with the management of the Springs, made the deal and it is claimed he secured a low price for Mrs. J. B. Willis, Mr. Chenault Willis, of Nicholasville, and Mr. H. G. Skiles, cashier of the Crab Orchard Banking Co. It will be good news to the public to hear that Mrs. Willis will remain in charge of the hotel until October. Only a few months ago she bought the Robinson interest in the Springs and formed a stock company with her son, above mentioned, as president, H. G. Skiles as vice-president and herself as secretary-treasurer.—Interior Journal.

TOMLINSON-SKINNER.

The many friends of Miss Francis Tomlinson and Mr. Joe Skinner were greatly surprised to hear of their marriage at Corbin, Thursday afternoon. Miss Tomlinson had been visiting relatives at Middlesboro for several weeks, so Mr. Skinner met her Thursday afternoon at Corbin, where they were married. The marriage was the culmination of an extended courtship of a number of years. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Belle Tomlinson and is well known and very popular with all of her acquaintances and a young lady of many accomplishments. The groom is one of Gardner's most prominent young business men, having been engaged in the Mercantile business at Marcellus for a number of years. They returned home after a short trip and for the present have taken rooms with Mrs. H. W. McAfee. They expect to go to house-keeping soon. They have the best wishes of the entire community for a long and happy life.

KEEP YOUNG HORSE GROWING

Good Practice, When Not Carried to Extremes, to Allow Colts to Rough It in Winter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Colts that are kept growing make the best horses. Some farmers allow their young horses to "rough it" through the winter and, although this is a good practice when not carried to extremes, if the feeder is not careful it may give the colt a setback which permanently retards its development.

Feeds that will promote growth should be supplied. Good, clean clover hay is palatable and slightly laxative. Timothy hay commonly is fed. Well-cured alfalfa hay free from dust is one of the best roughages for growing, but because of its relatively high protein content it generally is economical to supplement it with other roughage such as timothy, mixed hay, or corn fodder. Besides lending variety to the ration such a method of feeding alfalfa would offset any likelihood of kidney or bowel irregularities. Sheaf oats can be used to good advantage to supplement other roughage. The animals should not be allowed to gorge themselves on dry feed. They should be given only what they will clean up readily, but at the same time enough feed should be supplied. Oats, corn and peas, preferably fed ground, are suitable grains. Bran, oil meal or gluten feed will add protein and lend variety. Cottonseed meal should not be fed to foals. Appropriate grain rations for the first winter are: Two parts corn, five parts oats, three parts bran and one part oil meal; or four parts oats, one part corn and one part bran.

Silage should not be fed to foals to any considerable extent. Sliced roots, such as carrots and sugar beets, are very palatable and have a cooling effect on the digestive system. The quantity of feed generally should be regulated by the appetite, although occasionally the appetite may be too ravenous to be a good indication. The general condition of the colt and the droppings should be observed daily. Usually not over one pound of grain per 100 pounds of live weight should be fed until the animal is two years old. A liberal supply of salt and good water and plenty of fresh air and exercise are essential for the proper development of young horses. Idleness succeeding exercise will cause constipation. It is often said that a horse is made during his first winter. Certainly this is a critical time in the animal's life, and at no other age will proper feed and attention do as much to make of him a good horse. If stunted during the first winter he never will gain proper size and shape.

Splendid Young Fillies.

During the second winter the feed and management should be nearly the same as for the first winter, except that the quantity of feed should be increased somewhat, the colt tied up in his stall and handled frequently. Education by gentle and careful but firm handling at this age will save later much strenuous labor.

BOAR IN PROPER CONDITION

Good Judgment Is Necessary and Extremes Are to Be Avoided—Vigor Is Essential.

It requires good judgment to keep a boar in the best possible condition. Extremes are to be avoided. The over-fat boar is not satisfactory, and a half-starved one cannot transmit vigor and constitution to its young.

SALT FOR SHEEP IN WINTER

When Feeding for Lamb Crop It Is Well to Remember That You Are Feeding for Wool.

Sheep need a little salt winter as well as in summer. Remember that when you are feeding for the lamb crop you are also feeding for wool. A well-fed, well-nourished ewe will shear a heavy fleece.

SOW'S FEED OF IMPORTANCE

Animal Requires Something Besides Meal—Give Her Roots, Alfalfa or Red Clover Hay.

As in the case of the boar, the sow requires something besides meal, and the furnishing of some such feeds as roots, alfalfa or red clover hay, is even more important than in feeding the boar. Skim milk is also excellent when it can be had.

That Might Help Some.

Mild (about to leave)—"Might I ask for a recommendation, ma'am?" Mistress—"But, Mary, what could I truthfully say that would help you to get another place?" Mild—"Just say that I know many of your family secrets, ma'am." —Boston Transcript.

Air Plants.

In some parts of Mexico "air plants" abound. These curious growths are never attached to the soil in any way, but rely for their moisture on the atmosphere. One kind, known as "Spaniard's Beard" (Tillandsia usneoides), attaches itself to telephone wires. Very often the growth becomes a positive nuisance, and it is necessary to send men to clear it away. The "Spaniard's Beard" has no proper leaves, and in appearance is simply a mass of green gray threads.—Wide World.

Forget It.

Regretting the mistakes of yesterday is a poor substitute for preventing the mistakes of the morrow. Even though the heart be sore for what is over and done, it is folly to sit down and bewail it. The future is before us, and needs clear vision, not eyes tear-dimmed.

Rich Fishing Ground.

What are termed the reef waters along the north and northeast of Honduras form one of the rich fishing grounds of the world. The region begins about 100 miles east of Cuba and extends around some distance south of Cape Gracias a Dios. This is all more or less shallow water, forming one great coral reef with a number of small keys extending up above the surface of the water and forming small islands. It is thus an ideal fish and turtle ground.

Botany.

Botany is based on a classification of plants which depends largely on the anatomy of the ovaries, seeds and reproductive organs. Flowers and fruit are therefore often necessary to identification of species and but rarely can determination be made from foliage alone.

Barnacles on Warships.

Warships have to be cleaned on the outside. On one ship alone 200 men worked all day scraping off 600 tons of animal and plant growth. This tremendous quantity of sea life had accumulated in less than two years, during which time the ship had traveled many thousands miles. The weight of the barnacles was so great that from 25 to 40 per cent more coal was consumed in maintaining the normal speed of the boat.

SAYS VIN HEPATICA IS GREATEST

MEDICINE THAT HE EVER SAW.

Saw In Papers Where It Helped Nashville Friend of His—Took It For Weak and Run Down Condition, Stomach Trouble and Headache—Made New Man Of Him Already, He Says.

Mr. W. M. Gleaves, Manager of Menasha Outing Club, Menasha, Kansas, says the Vin Hepatica prescription has made an entirely new man of him.

"I saw in the papers," writes Mr. Gleaves, "where it had done so much for the wife of Lieut. Long, of the Nashville Police Force, and knowing her personally, and that what she said was true and could be depended upon I went and bought two bottles of Vin Hepatica."

"I had tried everything else for my stomach trouble, indigestion, headaches, and run down condition, but without any results. I was at one time on the police force in Nashville, but had to give it up on account of my health. I am now manager of the Menasha Outing Club, where they have everything good to eat. But before taking Vin Hepatica I could not eat as I do now.

"I now feel stronger and better in every way, and am advising my secretary to take Vin Hepatica, for it is the grandest medicine I ever saw. Am also advising my friends, and do advise everyone else suffering as I did to take Vin Hepatica, for it has made a new man of me. You can put this statement anywhere in the world you want to, for if I can be instrumental in helping others suffering as I was, I am anxious to do it."

Just such letters as this come pouring in day after day to the Vin Hepatica laboratories, because this great Vin Hepatica prescription is composed of eight of the finest herbal remedies known to medical science. Come in and get a bottle, and try it on our recommendation.

RESOLUTIONS

Passed By The Directors of The Citizens

National Bank of Lancaster, Kentucky, July 18th, 1918.

1. It is with extreme regret that we record the untimely death of our director and co-worker, Clayton A. Arnold, and we desire to bear testimony to his honest and upright character, his fidelity to duty, and his true friendship to those associated with him. He was a capable official, and a good citizen.

2. We express our great sympathy to his wife and family, and point them for consolation to Him who doeth all things well.

3. That these resolutions be entered upon the minute book of this bank, that they be printed in the Central Record, and a copy sent to the family.

THE HOMELY MAN

By VINCENT G. PERRY.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"The kind of girl he would marry would not marry him and the kind of girl that would marry him he wouldn't have, so there you are." Donald Macbeth could not help overhearing these words as he sat in a quiet corner of the clubroom, unnoticed. A feeling of resentment rose in his heart for the men were discussing him. He took a more careful look at them. They were the two he had thought, Ian Vining and Lorne Miller, two clubmen with whom he was fairly intimate.

"But why?" questioned Vining. "He's clever and moderately well off. He's considered one of the painters of the day."

"Yes; but did you ever see a homelier man? That scar on his face makes him positively hideous," Miller declared.

"Beauty is only skin deep," argued Vining, who wasn't handsome himself. "So it is, but disfigurements cannot be overlooked. There is generally something pleasant in a homely man's face to detract from bad features."

"I am sure his eyes are kind and sympathetic. Have you ever seen a picture of him before he had that scar?"

"No; I thought he was born that way," Miller said with a show of interest.

Vining led him to a group picture on the wall. "There he is, there," he pointed out. "Can't you recognize the eyes? He was handsome then."

"Yes," Miller agreed, "he was. I can hardly credit that it is the same man. But even that is no argument. He is as homely as sin now and is the only man I know of in the club who is doomed to bachelorhood. Imagine a pretty woman married to a man like that."

"He might find it hard to get a wife, at that," Vining said after a moment's thought. "Let's leave that to him, though. How about the theater tonight? Marguerite Morton is playing her farewell before going into the movies. She's a dream! Will you come?"

Miller needed no second invitation. After they had gone Donald Macbeth got up and went to the group on the wall. It was a long time since he had looked on the smiling, handsome face that had once been his; he wished he had not looked at it. What was the use? It only made it harder to bear. The light behind him reflected his features on the glass and he turned away with a shudder. No, he had no right to ask any woman to marry such a homely man as he was. He would give Marguerite a chance to break her engagement that very night—the night she was leaving the old life behind and was going into something new. In a few months she would be as popular, universally, as she was in the city.

He arrived at the theater just after the curtain had gone up. From the moment Marguerite flitted onto the stage he was entranced. How adorable she was.

In another part of the house Vining and Miller were watching the play and were almost as enthusiastic over it as Donald. Miller had not been a follower of Marguerite's, but this play appealed to him.

After the play was over he persuaded Vining to accompany him behind the scenes.

"I'm going to meet that little lady and take her to a little supper, if it costs me a million in tips," he said.

But even generous tipping couldn't get him any farther than behind the scenes.

"Miss Morton doesn't receive visitors," the man at the door told him, "but I will take your card to her."

Miller hoped she would connect his name with his father's millions. It had always proved enough introduction to the other actresses that he had honored with a visit. What would his father say if he married an actress? He would not object to one like Marguerite Morton. Wouldn't they make a handsome couple? He twisted his mustache before a mirror on the wall. He was handsome, there was no denying it. He had reason to be conceited, he felt. Vining watched him with just a trace of a smile playing about his lips. "Some day, Mr. Man, you'll get a shock to your vanity," he said to himself, "and I'd like to be around when you get it."

The man returned with the card. "Miss Morton can't see you, sir," he said politely.

"Miss Morton considers herself too important," Miller flashed. "She's only an actress after all."

"You'd better not say anything agin Miss Morton here, sir," the man cautioned. "She's mighty popular with us all. There's a young man in there now who fought a lion to save her life, and he won out too. She's going to marry him tonight, sir. She just informed me. He's a fine young man and she's a fine girl—the finest in the land, and I wouldn't mind fightin' a lion for a girl like her myself, though I ain't got much beauty to get spoilt."

The men were still talking when Marguerite's door opened and she came out, her arm in Donald Macbeth's. She was looking up into his face, smiling sweetly, noticing nothing but him. Macbeth caught a glance of the two men standing there with incredulity written in every feature. There was a smile of victory on his face when he turned his eyes once more to Marguerite's and whispered to her softly.

Weekly War News Digest

Stories of Activities and Conditions Throughout the United States and on the Battle Fronts, from Washington, D. C.

Soldiers In Field and Camp Get Many Books.

The War Service Committee of the American Library Association reports that 435,000 books were shipped to American soldiers in France up to July 1. The books went in tonnage space granted at the request of General Pershing on the decks of transports, where they were used by the men on the voyage and repacked for use in France: in naval vessels for naval bases abroad; and in Red Cross tonnage for the hospitals in France and England.

A total of more than 2,500,000 books have been supplied by the American Library Association to the camps and stations in the United States and overseas. Approximately 500,000 of these books were purchased, the others having come as gifts from the American people thru the public libraries of the country. Nearly 40 library buildings have been erected, and 600 camps in America, alone, have received collections of books.

Two hundred librarians, including leaders in their profession in this country, are giving their time to Library War Service. Most of these are serving as camp librarians, assistants, and organizers in the field; others are in dispatch offices for the shipment of books to France.

Army Vocational School Opened for Blinded Fighters.

Returning blinded soldiers, sailors, and marines are being received now for vocational instruction and rehabilitation at Hospital Training School, General Hospital No. 7, the former home of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, at Baltimore, Md. The hospital is outfitted to accommodate 250 men and has large recreation fields and an extensive acreage in gardens.

Col. James Borley, of the Surgeon General's Office in charge of the re-education of the blind, has announced the appointment of O. H. Burritt, of the Pennsylvania Institute for the Instruction of the Blind, as the educational director of this Army hospital training school, with Miss Jenny A. Turner, formerly designer for the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, as a reconstruction aide. Miss Turner has been working with the returned wounded soldiers at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington.

The blinded soldiers from overseas will be discharged from the hospital after they have been taught a practical self-supporting trade, have been put in good physical condition, and taught to read standard printing in raised type. The men will be sent to their own home communities and placed in the trades for which they have been trained. Red Cross workers will watch after their welfare.

Cooperating with the Army Medical Department, the Red Cross Institute for the Blind is now making a national survey of industries open to blinded soldiers. Instructions will be made to conform with preparations for these industries. The Federal Board for Vocational Education is arranging a plan for the economic and social supervision of all wounded and maimed soldiers.

Secretary Wilson Gives Reason for Labor Mobilization.

Secretary of Labor Wilson makes this explanation of the general mobilization of labor for war industries, recruiting for which is to begin August 1 under direction of the United States Employment Service:

"Beginning with common labor, this service will gradually take charge of the mobilizing and placing of all labor for war industries employing 100 or more workers. This will profoundly affect all other industries and all other workers. It will correct the abuses and troubles growing out of the large labor turnover with the consequent disruption of regular work.

"Every safeguard must be taken to protect the standard of living and the morale of the wage earners. Especially must great care be taken to keep the age limit of those who enter industry at a high level, lest we rob our future citizenship of its right to growth and time for education. We must also take knowledge of the dangers attendant upon the large entrance of women into heavy and hazardous industries.

"The exigencies of war times should not be made the occasion for the breaking down of those standards of hours, wages, and conditions of work which are designed to protect the childhood, the womanhood and the motherhood of the present and of the future.

"Experts tell us it takes from 6 to 10 workers at home to keep one soldier on the firing line in Europe. Whatever, therefore, helps to mobilize, distribute, and energize those who do the work of our war industries has become as important a factor in winning the war as the prowess of our armies in the field or our Navy on the seas."

Children Must Play To Be Healthy and Strong.

A children's recreation drive is on to continue during July and August, under the auspices of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, and the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense. It will culminate in "patriotic play week", September 1-7, in which the work of 11,000,000 women in organizing recreation in 10,000 communities will come to an end.

"To be strong for victory the Nation must let her children play," said Charles Frederick Weller, associate secretary of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America. No time nor money can be spared from war-winning activities, but the winning of the war depends on man power, and the man power can not be sustained in any nation without health and wholesomeness in the children.

Far worse than exhausting America's financial capital would be the exhaustion of child life, which is man power capital.

"England and France began as the United States has been tempted to begin—by letting the children pay too heavily for the war in child labor, increased delinquency, overtaxed nerves, weakened bodies, and premature deaths, but England and France turned to lift war burdens from the children by giving them a chance to play. There is urgent need to give our boys and girls an American square deal—their safety and of play."

Looks Are What Count.

"You must be crazy, Isabel. I've asked you repeatedly to be economical and yet you go and order the most expensive fur coat in the shop." "Well, I don't mind being economical, but I do object to looking economical."—Life.

Invention Constantly Improved.

The storage battery or electric accumulator of Faure was first exhibited in London 37 years ago. Since then the invention has been greatly improved by Edison and others, and is now successfully applied to the operation of street cars and other uses.

New Source of Alcohol.

Alcohol is being made in Ciudad Juarez, Mex., from a plant called sotol, which grows uncultivated in Mexico and southern Texas. Consul E. A. Dow reports that from 18 to 25 gallons of alcohol can be produced from one ton of the plant.

Love Letters in Hymn Book.

A pair of lovers who had been forbidden to speak or write, attended the same church, and their plan was the exchange of hymn books. As the young man was an officer of the church he did this little job before service. Most delightful and satisfactory love letters could be pieced together by following certain lead-pencil marks, and in order to elude even a Sherlock Holmes of the household, the letters were made to read from the end to the beginning of the book.

Why Suffer?

Mrs. J. A. Cox, of Alderson, W. Va., writes: "My daughter . . . suffered terribly. She could not turn in bed . . . the doctors gave her up, and we brought her home to die. She had suffered so much at . . . time. Having heard of Cardui, we got it for her."

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"In a few days, she began to improve," Mrs. Cox continues, "and had no trouble at . . . Cardui cured her, and we sing its praises everywhere. We receive many thousands of similar letters every year, telling of the good Cardui has done for women who suffer from complaints so common to their sex. It should do you good, too. Try Cardui. Lancaster, Ky., July 25, 1918

Every effort will be made to make War Conference Day for Garrard County the biggest day since the war began. It will be an all day meeting on August 8th. Public schools will probably be dismissed on that day and the teachers will be asked to bring the children to Lancaster; the parents of all the children will be asked to come, the Red Cross organizations of the county, the Thrift Stamp organization, Liberty Bond organization; the Liberty Service League, and other patriotic organizations of the County will be active in making this all-day meeting a great success. There will be a number of good speakers to address the crowd before noon and afternoon and at night. The program for the entertainment has not yet been completed, but it can be stated that there will be appropriate music and speeches, discussing and explaining all the phases of the great war by the ablest platform orators that can be gotten. The meeting is held under the direction of the State Council of Defense under control of Prof. H. H. Cherry, of Bowling Green, Ky. This is everybody's meeting and the mothers and fathers of the boys who are already in the army are especially invited and urged to be present. Those attending from outside of town are requested to bring with them their lunches and dinner will probably be served on the Graded School campus. Those who desire to participate in advertising this patriotic day and want a part in making it a success are requested to send their names to the Record Office.

This can be made a most useful day for Garrard county. The war spirit of the people can be aroused and enthusiasm created among all by the meeting of this kind as in no other way. We urge it upon the people's mind that August 8th 1918, is a most important day for Garrard County. Make your arrangements to come, tell your neighbor about it and have him to come also.

Democrats of Garrard County should and will be deeply interested in the State primary of Saturday, August 3. Senator Ollie James submits to his party his candidacy for renomination to the Senate, which is asking an endorsement of his work of six years in the United States Senate. It is now generally known that Senator James has been ill for several months and for a greater portion of that time has been confined to his room. It is reported that he is somewhat improved in health but is not able to make a canvas and present the result of his six years work to his constituents. The great accomplishments of Senator James for his State and nation during his years at Washington are so well known to the people and are so much appreciated that it is not necessary for him to be here in order to get the votes in the primary. His opponent, Mr. W. P. Kimbell, of Lexington, endeavors to explain his candidacy but not satisfactorily. Democrats of Kentucky should express their feeling and appreciation of Senator James by being at the polls and casting their votes for him. Of course Kimbell has no chance for the nomination over Senator James but the nomination should be made unanimous and the democrats of Kentucky should enthusiastically rally to the polls on August 3 and give Senator James the largest vote that any democrat ever received in a State primary in Kentucky.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Few people have the distinction of being struck by lightning and living to tell the tale. But such is the case of Mr. and Mrs. Stearns, of Lexington, who are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cy Moberley near Coy, in this county. Tuesday morning during the storm, Mr. and Mrs. Stearns were seated on the front veranda of the Moberly home when they were suddenly struck by a bolt of lightning, being seated close to each other. Both were knocked unconscious and fell to the floor. Mr. Stearns was unconscious for nearly an hour, while Mrs. Stearns recovered in a few moments. Both were badly burned down their sides, beside suffering with blistered feet, but are happy to escape so miraculously.

CRAB ORCHARD PLEASES EDITORS.

Entire Press Grateful To Mrs. Willis.

While the attendance was not what it should have been the meeting of the Kentucky Press Association at Crab Orchard last week was one of the most enjoyable had in several years.

Every preparation was made by the good people of this town and the Springs Hotel looking to the comfort and pleasure of the guests.

It was unfortunate indeed, and to the discredit of the K. P. A. that members of the executive committee, who were on the program, were not present.

The meeting was addressed by Food Administrator, F. M. Sackett, ed the country newspapers for the hearty support they have given the of Louisville, who highly complimented government in their loyal support of his work.

Several other interesting addresses were made and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—D. M. Hutton, Harrodsburg Herald.

Vice President—B. F. Forgy, Ashland Independent.

Chairman Executive Committee—Nall Larue, Franklin Favorite.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. C. Alcock, Danville Messenger.

The resolutions adopted were as follows:

Be it resolved by the Kentucky Press Association in annual session convened at Crab Orchard Springs, July 19, 1918, that we hereby tender our sincere thanks and appreciation to Mrs. J. B. Willis and the management of Crab Orchard Springs Hotel for the delightful hospitality extended during our meeting here; that the fried chicken and wheatless hot rolls were most appetizing and we found everything possible done for the comfort, convenience and entertainment of the members during their delightful stay as her guests. Also that we desire to express our great appreciation to Hon. F. M. Sackett, Food Administrator of Kentucky, Hon. J. B. Speed of Louisville, and Mr. A. M. Corrigan, representing the Liberty Loan publicity department, for their presence and enlightening addresses before the body; and also to Hon. W. B. Hansford, of Crab Orchard, for his cordial and eloquent address of welcome.

Be it further resolved, that we would send a word of cheer and heartfelt good wishes to the members of the Kentucky Press Association who have temporarily laid aside the pen for the sword, to make the good fight for the country we love; and to assure that their brothers in the old Kentucky Press Association are proud of them and their patriotic work, and are with them in spirit and love in their magnificent response to the call of their country.

KHAKI COLUMN

A message received this week by friends from Mr. Charley Morris, who is now stationed at Camp Beauregard La., says that he is well pleased with soldier life and will soon go after the Kaiser.

Mrs. Marie Raney has received word from her brother, Private Millard F. Carter, of the 33d Engineers, that he has arrived safely overseas. Mr. Carter is a former Garrard county boy, who enlisted in California.

Mrs. Mary Collett received a card from her son, George, who has arrived safely overseas.

He writes:—"I am well and happy and had a nice trip over. I like it fine here. Will write a letter soon." Love to all. George.

Mrs. Florence Grant has received word from her son, Lucian, that he has been promoted from the rank of Ensign to the grade of Junior Lieutenant in the Navy, and has been ordered overseas for destroyer duty. His home port in the future will be Queenstown, Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Merryman have received a very interesting letter from their son, John, who enlisted in the Marines from Indianapolis, and is now stationed at Paris Island, S. C. John is a fine young man and is making a capital soldier, being an expert marksman, something that will come in handy for him when he reaches the front line trenches.

His letter is as follows:

"My dear homefolks:

Just a few lines to tell you I am to remain on the Island for sometime as a teacher on the range. I know this will be good news to you to know I did not go to France with the 120. They will sail for New York at once. I am sorry I can not go, but will do just as much good here, teaching others how to fire.

Don't worry about me, I am O. K. and can stand anything any other man can, and will do my part, and when they say, Go over the top, I will be the first to go.

There were three others who made little better marks than I. I made 269 which was the highest out of 600. There is nothing a Marine can do except fight. We are called "Devil Dogs", by the Germans and the U. S. M. C., is just the same as the "Blue Devils" in France. They fight side by side.

I will write more when I have time.

With love and best wishes to all.

J. R. Merryman,

Rifle Range R. R. D.,

Paris Island, S. C.

Mrs. Wilson has received the following letter from the nurse who is attending her son, Gilbert, who was recently injured by accident in France:

France, June 18th, 1918.

My Dear Mrs. Wilson:—

Your boy, Gilbert, has asked me to write you a letter telling about his accident and just how he is getting along.

On June 5th, while he was at his Camp a grenade burst quite near him and unfortunately cut his throat very bad under his chin. In order to make his breathing possible the Drs. at the hospital inserted a silver tube in his trachea, making his breathing very easy for him and also giving him wound a chance to heal without over exertion by using his mouth and throat in any way.

By the next day they made an opening through his abdomen into his stomach by which we feed him many nourishing foods in liquid form, such as milk, gruels, creamed soups, eggnog, etc.

Gilbert isn't able to speak or use his voice, due to the trachea tube in his throat, but we all manage to get on well by his writing to us, also an alphabet form we use so we may count out the letters and figures he wants to use.

Two nurses have been on special duty with him ever since he was admitted, so you may rest assured he has never been alone at any time.

We are all American nurses at this Hospital and take care of our Soldier Boys. With a few exceptions now and then, the Doctors are the finest in our country (back home) coming from Yale Medical schools in New Haven, Connecticut.

Things are pretty lively up here in general, the boys come down regular from the field hospital and stay a few days and then they are sent back to the Base hospitals until they are completely well.

Gilbert's Chaplin from his own company said "he would write you and also his brother over here."

Mrs. Wilson don't worry about your boy. We are giving him the best care he could get any where in this little world. It seems little to me for I have traveled all over the State and am now enjoying my work in France as I did back home in the U. S. Army Hospitals.

Hoping some day when the War is over, to see and speak with you in person, for I have some friends in Louisville, Ky., whom I am going to visit. I may be able then to explain things a little more clearly than I have on paper, just now.

Hoping this eases your mind a little in regard to your boy.

I am very sincerely,

Margaret G. Cluney.

My home is 145 Barday St., Paterson, New Jersey. U. S. A.

FOX

Friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Joseph extend sincerest sympathy to her in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Rosa Fox, who died at her home in Eaton, Ohio, on Saturday July 13th.

The Eaton Ohio, Register-Herald, has the following concerning the death of Mrs. Fox:

"Mrs. Rosa Fox, wife of Bernard Fox, died at her home on East Wadsworth street, Saturday morning at 6:30 o'clock, aged 75 years, after an illness of many months, suffering from heart trouble. The deceased was born in Bavaria, Germany, and came to the United States at the age of 15 years. She was married to Bernard Fox in 1860, with whom she enjoyed the pleasures of a happy home for 58 years. To this union were born seven children, Mrs. Elizabeth Joseph, Lancaster Ky.; Mrs. Jennie Fry, Muncie, Ind.; Mrs. Isadore Heller, New York; Mrs. L. L. Wolfson, Eaton, Louis Fox, Dayton; Sam Fox, Columbus; Harry Fox, Peru, Ind., all of whom with the father survive. Mr. and Mrs. Fox came to Eaton more than 30 years ago and have been among Eaton's most substantial and highly esteemed citizens. Funeral services were conducted from the home by Rabbi Lefkowitz, of Dayton, Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Burial at Riverview cemetery, Dayton.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold and children.

LIGHTLESS NIGHT ORDER

The United States Fuel Administration's new "Lightless Night Order" restricting the use of fuel for outdoor illumination becomes effective Wednesday, July 24th.

Under the Order the use of lights generated or produced, by the use or consumption of coal, gas, oil or other fuel for illumination or displaying advertisements, announcements or signs for the external ornamentation of any building will be discontinued entirely on Monday and Tuesday nights of each week in this State.

The Order excepts bona fide roof gardens, outdoor restaurants and outdoor moving picture theatres. Street illumination in all cities will be restricted to the hours between sunset and sunrise and the amount of public lighting in any city will be reduced to that necessary for safety.

The use of light for illuminating or displaying any show windows, store windows or any signs in show windows will be discontinued from sunrise to sunset and will be discontinued entirely on the "Lightless Nights" designated by the order.

The Doing of It.

No honest work can degrade us; only the way in which we perform it can do that. The humblest task, well and painstakingly accomplished, is honorable. The highest undertaking, carelessly and poorly pushed through, is a disgrace to its doer.

Hardy Tree Is the Palm.

While commercial dates are successful for gold in very restricted areas, the palm is very "tough" and resourceful. It will actually thrive in sand, in clay, adobe, peat, swamp muck, alkaline or salty soils and generally over a wider range of conditions than almost any other plant.

Substitute for Gold.

It is said that a serviceable substitute for gold is obtained by combining 94 parts of copper with six parts of antimony and adding a little magnesium carbonate to increase the weight. It is said that this alloy can be drawn, wrought and soldered very much like gold, and that it also receives and retains a golden polish. It is worth something like 25 cents a pound.

Why Deering Rakes Are Popular

HERE are points you want in a good rake: Your rake frame must be strong and solidly built. The wheels must stand the torsional strains they will meet in the field. The rake must get all the hay. The dumping arrangement must work easily and quickly and be handled easily. The rake teeth must be strong and resilient to work without breakage.

Every one of these points is found on the Deering rake. Deering rake owners save trouble and temper. Ask any one of them.

Made in sizes 6 1/2 feet to 12 feet. Buy a Deering self-dump rake and get with it good rake service for years.

BIBLE SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Garrard County Christian Bible School Convention met at Paint Lick, Tuesday, July 16th. The attendance was large and much interest was shown by the earnest Bible School workers gathered from all sections of the county.

A fine report from the various Bible Schools was made, the county lacking but one point of being a Banner county. Splendid addresses were made by a number of local workers and great results are expected from the practical and inspiring work of Miss Lewis, State Representative.

The bountiful dinner served by the hospitable Paint Lick people, was enjoyed by all.

The following resolutions were submitted:

We the members of the resolution committee beg to submit the following resolutions:

1st. To recommend the Bible Schools of Garrard county a patriotic program as outlined in address of Miss Lewis, especially Regular Workers Conferences, Teacher's Training Course, Graded Organization and Lessons.

2nd. That every pastor, teacher, and Bible School officer take and read the Bulletin.

3rd. That each school, prayerfully and earnestly try to reach the Missionary apportionment and instructions be emphasized in greater way than in the past.

4th. Whereas our country is in a state of war, food conservation is of greatest importance, and whereas liquor traffic in various forms consumes many million bushels of food, be it resolved that each Bible School give temperance instructions in program.

5th. Since the war is making such a turning in the views of the people that each teacher make himself acquainted with the plea of Christian services and present such to each pupil.

6th. That each Bible school have a service flag for boys gone out into their country's service and each school strive to secure two members for Christian service for each one gone.

7th. That the Bible Schools make a campaign to tie up adult membership of church in Bible School and definite Bible study; and that the Bibles be used in classes rather than the quarterly.

8th. That a standing of thanks be given the people of Paint Lick church and especially the ladies for the gracious spirit in which we have been received.

9th. In face of the troubled conditions of the world, be it finally resolved that we the people of the Bible Schools of Garrard county enlist in the great army of the Lord for deeper consecration and devotion.

Respectfully submitted, Frank M. Tindler, J. R. Moorman, R. H. Batson.

LANCASTER MINIS-

TER THANKFUL.

"I had stomach trouble for nearly 20 years, also constipation which filled my system with gas and fever. I could not do my work and while I was down sick a lady from out of town sent me a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy which proved truly wonderful. I believe it is the best medicine on earth." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

R. E. McRoberts, Druggist.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Fired by the news of the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine, Arthur Guy Empey, an American, leaves his office in Jersey City and goes to England where he enlists in the British army.

CHAPTER II—After a period of training, Empey volunteers for immediate service and soon finds himself in rest billets "somewhere in France," where he first makes the acquaintance of the ever-present "coolies."

CHAPTER III—Empey attends his first church services at the front while a German Fokker circles over the congregation.

CHAPTER IV—Empey's command goes into the front-line trenches and is under fire for the first time.

CHAPTER V—Empey learns to adopt the motto of the British Tommy, "If you are going to get it, you'll get it, so never worry."

CHAPTER VI—Back in rest billets, Empey gets his first experience as a mess orderly.

CHAPTER VII—Empey learns how the British soldiers are fed.

CHAPTER VIII—Back in the front-line trench, Empey meets his first friend of the trenches, "Go West."

CHAPTER IX—Empey makes his first visit to a dugout in "Suicide Ditch."

CHAPTER X—Empey learns what constitutes a "day's work" in the front-line trench.

CHAPTER XI—Empey goes "over the top" for the first time in a charge on the German trenches and is wounded by a bayonet thrust.

CHAPTER XII—Empey joins the "suicide club" as the bombing squad is called.

CHAPTER XIII—Each Tommy gets an official bath.

CHAPTER XIV—Empey helps dig an advanced trench under German fire.

CHAPTER XV—On "listening post" in No Man's Land.

CHAPTER XVI—Two artillerymen "put one over" on Old Pepper, their regimental commander.

CHAPTER XVII—Empey has narrow escape while on patrol duty in No Man's Land.

CHAPTER XVIII—Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a farce comedy.

CHAPTER XIX—Soldiers have many ways to amuse themselves while "on their own."

CHAPTER XX—Empey volunteers for machine gun service and goes back into the front-line trenches.

CHAPTER XXI—Empey again goes "over the top" in a charge which cost his company 17 killed and 51 wounded.

CHAPTER XXII—Trick with a machine gun silences one bothersome Fritz.

CHAPTER XXIII—German attack, preceded by gas wave, is repulsed.

CHAPTER XXIV—Empey is forced to take part in an execution as a member of the firing squad.

CHAPTER XXV—British prepare for the Big Push—the battle of the Somme.

CHAPTER XXVI—In a trench raid, preceding the Big Push, Empey is desperately wounded and lies unconscious in No Man's Land for 36 hours.

CHAPTER XXVII—After four months in a British hospital, Empey is discharged as "physically unfit for further war service."

Sound is a valuable asset in locating a machine gun, but Tommy surmounts this obstacle by placing two machine guns about one hundred to one hundred and fifty yards apart. The gun on the right to cover with its fire the sector of the left gun and the gun on the left to cover that of the right gun. This makes their fire cross; they are fired simultaneously.

By this method it sounds like one gun firing and gives the Germans the impression that the gun is firing from a point midway between the guns which are actually firing, and they accordingly shell that particular spot. The machine gunners chuckle and say, "Fritz is a brainy boy, not 'alf he ain't."

But the men in our lines at the spot being shelled curse Fritz for his ignorance and pass a few pert remarks down the line in reference to the machine gunners being "windy" and afraid to take their medicine.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gas Attacks and Spies.

Three days after we had silenced Fritz, the Germans sent over gas. It did not catch us unawares, because the wind had been made to order, that is, it was blowing from the German trenches toward ours at the rate of about five miles per hour.

Warnings had been passed down the trench to keep a sharp lookout for gas. We had a new man at the periscope, on this afternoon in question; I was sitting on the fire step, cleaning my rifle, when he called out to me:

"There's a sort of greenish, yellow cloud rolling along the ground out in front. It's coming—"

But I waited for no more, grabbing my bayonet, which was detached from the rifle, I gave the alarm by banging an empty shell case, which was hanging near the periscope. At the same instant, gongs started ringing down the trench, the signal for Tommy to don his respirator, or smoke helmet, as we call it.

Gas travels quickly, so you must not lose any time; you generally have about eighteen or twenty seconds in which to adjust your gas helmet.

A gas helmet is made of cloth, treated with chemicals. There are two windows, or glass eyes, in it, through which you can see. Inside there is a rubber-covered tube, which goes in the mouth. You breathe through your nose; the gas, passing through the cloth helmet, is neutralized by the action of the chemicals. The foul air is exhaled through the tube in the mouth, this tube being so constructed that it prevents the inhaling of the outside air or gas. One helmet is good for five hours of the strongest gas. Each Tommy carries two of them slung around his shoulder in a waterproof canvas bag. He must wear this bag at all times, even while sleeping. To change a defective helmet, you take out the new one, hold your breath, pull the old one off, placing the new one over your head, tucking in the loose ends under the collar of your tunic.

For a minute, pandemonium reigned in our trench—Tommy adjusting their helmets, bombers running here and there, and men turning out of the dugouts with fixed bayonets, to man the fire step.

Re-enforcements were pouring out of the communication trenches. Our gun's crew were busy mounting the machine gun on the parapet and bringing up extra ammunition from the dugout.

German gas is heavier than air and soon fills the trenches and dugouts, where it has been known to lurk for two or three days, until the air is purified by means of large chemical sprayers.

We had to work quickly, as Fritz generally follows the gas with an infantry attack.

A company man on our right was too slow in getting on his helmet; he sank to the ground, clutching at his throat, and after a few spasmodic twistings went West (died). It was horrible to see him die, but we were powerless to help him. In the corner of a traverse, a little, muddy cur dog, one of the company's pets, was lying dead, with his paws over his nose.

It's the animals that suffer the most—the horses, mules, cattle, dogs, cats and rats—they having no helmets to save them. Tommy does not sympathize with rats in a gas attack.

At times gas has been known to travel, with dire results, fifteen miles behind the lines.

A gas, or smoke helmet, as it is called, at the best is a vile-smelling thing, and it is not long before one gets a violent headache from wearing it.

Our eighteen-pounders were bursting in No Man's Land, in an effort, by the artillery, to disperse the gas clouds.

The fire step was lined with crouching men, bayonets fixed, and bombs near at hand to repel the expected attack.

Our artillery had put a barrage of curtain fire on the German lines, to try and break up their attack and keep back re-enforcements.

I trained my machine gun on their trench and its bullets were raking the parapet.

Then over they came, bayonets glinting. In their respirators, which have a large snout in front, they looked like some horrible nightmare.

All along our trench, rifles and machine guns spoke, our shrapnel was bursting over their heads. They went down in heaps, but new ones took the places of the fallen. Nothing could stop that mad rush. The Germans reached our barbed wire, which had previously been demolished by their shells, then it was bomb against bomb, and the devil for all.

Suddenly my head seemed to burst from a loud "crack" in my ear. Then my head began to swim, throat got dry, and a heavy pressure on the lungs warned me that my helmet was leaking. Turning by gun over to No. 2, I changed helmets.

The trench started to wind like a snake, and sandbags appeared to be floating in the air. The noise was horrible; I sank onto the fire step, needles seemed to be pricking my flesh, then blackness.

I was awakened by one of my mates removing my smoke helmet. How delicious that cool, fresh air felt in my lungs.

A strong wind had arisen and dispersed the gas.

They told me that I had been "out" for three hours; they thought I was dead.

The attack had been repulsed after a hard fight. Twice the Germans had gained a foothold in our trench, but had been driven out by counter-attacks. The trench was filled with their dead and ours. Through a periscope I counted eighteen dead Germans in our wire; they were a ghastly sight in their horrible-looking respirators.

I examined my first smoke helmet. A bullet had gone through it on the left side, just grazing my ear. The gas had penetrated through the hole made in the cloth.

Out of our crew of six we lost two killed and two wounded.

That night we buried all of the dead, excepting those in No Man's Land. In death there is not much distinction; friend and foe are treated alike.

After the wind had dispersed the gas the R. A. M. C. got busy with their chemical sprayers, spraying out the dugouts and low parts of the trenches to dissipate any fumes of the German gas which may have been lurking in same.

Two days after the gas attack I was sent to division headquarters, in answer to an order requesting that captains of units should detail a man whom they thought capable of passing an examination for the divisional intelligence department.

Before leaving for this assignment I went along the front-line trench saying good-bye to my mates and bidding them over them, telling them that I had clicked a cushy job behind the lines, and how sorry I felt that they had to stay in the front line and argue out the war with Fritz. They were envious but still good-natured, and as I left the trench to go to the rear they shouted after me:

"Good luck, Yank, old boy; don't forget to send up a few fags to your old mates."

I promised to do this and left.

I reported at headquarters with sixteen others and passed the required examination. Out of the sixteen applicants four were selected.

I was highly elated because I was, I thought, in for a cushy job back at the base.

The next morning the four reported to division headquarters for instructions. Two of the men were sent to large towns in the rear of the lines with an easy job. When it came our turn the officer told us we were good men and had passed a very creditable examination.

My tin hat began to get too small for me, and I noted that the other man, Atwell by name, was sticking his chest out more than usual.

The officer continued: "I think I can use you two men to great advantage in the front line. Here are your orders and instructions, also the pass which gives you full authority as special M. P. detailed on intelligence work. Report at the front line according to your instructions. It is risky work and I wish you both the best of luck."

My heart dropped to zero and Atwell's face was a study. We saluted and left.

That wishing us the "best of luck" sounded very ominous in our ears; if he had said "I wish you both a swift and painless death" it would have been more to the point.

When we had read our instructions we knew we were in for it good and plenty.

What Atwell said is not fit for publication, but I strongly seconded his opinion of the war, army and divisional headquarters in general.

After a bit our spirits rose. We were full-fledged spy-catchers, because our instructions and orders, said so.

We immediately reported to the nearest French estaminet and had several glasses of muddy water, which they called beer. After drinking our beer we left the estaminet and hailed an empty ambulance.

After showing the driver our passes we got in. The driver was going to the part of the line where we had to report.

How the wounded ever survived a ride in that ambulance was inexplicable to me. It was worse than riding on a gun carriage over a rock road.

The driver of the ambulance was a corporal of the R. A. M. C., and he had the "wind up," that is, he had an aversion to being under fire.

I was riding on the seat with him while Atwell was sitting in the ambulance, with his legs hanging out of the back.

As we passed through a shell-destroyed village a mounted military policeman stopped us and informed the driver to be very careful when we got out on the open road, as it was very dangerous, because the Germans lately had acquired the habit of shelling it. The corporal asked the trooper if there was any other way around, and was informed that there was not. Upon this he got very nervous and wanted to turn back, but we insisted that he proceed and explained to him that he would get into serious trouble with his commanding officer if he returned without orders; we wanted to ride, not walk.

From his conversation we learned that he had recently come from England with a draft and had never been under fire, hence his nervousness.

We convinced him that there was not much danger, and he appeared greatly relieved.

When we at last turned into the open road we were not so confident. On each side there had been a line of trees, but now, all that was left of them were torn and battered stumps. The fields on each side of the road were dotted with recent shell holes, and we passed several in the road itself. We had gone about half a mile when a shell came whistling through the air and burst in a field about three hundred yards to our right. Another soon followed this one and burst on the edge of the road about four hundred yards in front of us.

I told the driver to throw in his speed clutch, as we must be in sight of the Germans. I knew the signs; that battery was ranging for us, and the quicker we got out of its zone of fire the better. The driver was trembling like a leaf, and every minute I expected him to pile us up in the ditch. I preferred the German fire.

In the back Atwell was holding onto the straps for dear life, and was singing at the top of his voice:

We beat you at the Marne,
We beat you at the Aisne,
We gave you hell at Neuve Chapelle,
And here we are again.

Just then we hit a small shell hole and nearly capsized. Upon a loud yell from the rear I looked behind, and there was Atwell sitting in the middle of the road, shaking his fist at us. His equipment, which he had taken off upon getting into the ambulance, was strung out on the ground, and his rifle was in the ditch.

I shouted to the driver to stop, and in his nervousness he put on the brakes. We nearly pitched out head-first. But the applying of those brakes saved our lives. The next instant there was a blinding flash and a deafening report. All that I remember is that I was flying through the air, and wondering if I would land in a soft spot. Then the lights went out.

When I came to, Atwell was pouring water on my head out of his bottle. On the other side of the road the corporal was sitting, rubbing a lump on his forehead with his left hand, while his right arm was bound up in a blood-soaked bandage. He was moaning very loudly. I had an awful headache and the skin on the left side of my face was full of gravel and the blood was trickling from my nose.

But that ambulance was turned over in the ditch and was perforated with holes from fragments of the shell. One of the front wheels was slowly revolving, so I could not have been "out" for a long period.

The shells were still screaming overhead, but the battery had raised its fire and they were bursting in a little wood about half a mile from us.

Atwell spoke up. "I wish that officer hadn't wished us the best of luck." Then he commenced swearing. I couldn't help laughing, though my head was nigh to bursting.

Slowly rising to my feet I felt myself all over to make sure that there were no broken bones. But outside of a few bruises and scratches I was all right. The corporal was still moaning, but more from shock than pain. A shell splinter had gone through the flesh of his right forearm. Atwell and I, from our first-aid pouches, put a tourniquet on his arm to stop the bleeding and then gathered up our equipment.

We realized that we were in a dangerous spot. At any minute a shell might drop on the road and finish us off. The village we had left was not very far, so we told the corporal he had better go back to it and get his arm dressed, and then report the fact of the destruction of the ambulance to the military police. He was well able to walk, so he set off in the direction of the village, while Atwell and I continued our way on foot.

Without further mishap we arrived at our destination, and reported to brigade headquarters for rations and billets.

That night we slept in the battalion sergeant major's dugout. The next morning I went to a first-aid post and had the gravel picked out of my face.

The instructions we received from division headquarters read that we were out to catch spies, patrol trenches, search German dead, reconnoiter in No Man's Land, and take part in trench raids and prevent the robbing of the dead.

I had a pass which would allow me to go anywhere at any time in the sector of the line held by our division. It gave me authority to stop and search ambulances, motor lorries, wagons and even officers and soldiers, whenever my suspicions deemed it necessary. Atwell and I were allowed to work together or singly—it was left to our judgment. We decided to team up.

Fresh Beef Travels on a Rapid Schedule

Fresh beef for domestic markets goes from stockyards to retail stores within a period of about two weeks. Although chilled, this meat is not frozen; hence it cannot be stored for a rise in price.

A steer is dressed usually within twenty-four hours after purchase by the packer. The beef is held in a cooler at the packing house, at a temperature a little above freezing, for about three days.

It is then loaded into a refrigerator car where a similar temperature is maintained, and is in transit to market on an average of about six days.

Upon arrival at the branch distributing house, it is unloaded into a "cooler", and placed on sale.

Swift & Company requires all beef to be sold during the week of arrival, and the average of sales is within five days.

Any delay along the above journey means deterioration in the meat and loss to the packer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. LeCompte and children, of Frankfort, have been the guests of Mrs. A. P. Hunn. Miss Nancy Hunn returned home with them, after a visit to them.

News was received here Saturday that Prof. W. O. Hopper, of Mt. Sterling, had been seriously injured while in Indianapolis, Ind. The message stated that he had been injured in getting off of a Pullman car.

Mrs. Herbert Reynolds left last week for Waynesburg, where she will spend several weeks before going to Somerset, where she will remain, while her husband, Herbert Reynolds is in Uncle Sam's service. He has enlisted in the marines and is stationed at Paris Island, S. C.

Quite a little bit of commotion was caused here Saturday night by the cars of J. H. Hill and D. C. Lair running together. Mr. Lair was coming up Main street and Mr. Hill turned down the street between the courthouse and Christian church and ran into the Lair car which was turned up considerably. The Hill car was not damaged. Mrs. Smith and baby, who were in the car were bruised and terribly frightened, but no bones were broken.

Mrs. W. Russell Dillion died at her home in the Cedar Creek section, of this county, Sunday night after a lingering illness due to cancer. She was a daughter of Mrs. Issie Tucker who is left to mourn that she is no more. She is also survived by her husband and four children. Deceased was a good christian woman and will be greatly missed not only in the home but in the entire neighborhood. Interment occurred Tuesday.

A very great surprise was received here when it was made known that Miss Sue Saunders and Mr. Leonard D. Wilson had been united in wedlock's holy bonds in Louisville. Miss Saunders had only been here about a month visiting her father, Mr. W. W. Saunders, at the Coffey Hotel, where she met Mr. Wilson, who has been here assisting J. L. Beazley sell pianos. Miss Saunders is a charming young lady and the man of her choice should be congratulated on winning her. Mr. Wilson during his short stay in this city has made many friends and seems to be a fine gentleman and a man of business qualities.

Great Things Born in Silence.

Silence is the element in which great things fashion themselves together; that at length they may emerge, full-formed and majestic, into the daylight of life, which they are thenceforth to rule.—Carlyle.

Silent Clock.

A new clock has been invented which is absolutely silent. It is driven by an electric battery, and a drop of mercury moving from end to end in a vacuum tube to make contacts, replaces the usual ticking escapement.

No Difficulty at All.

A well-known humorist was once amusing his companions with a running fire of puns, when one of them, a gentleman named Dunlop, defied him to make a pun on his name. "Nothing easier," came the immediate retort. "Lop off half and it is 'Dun.'"

Cultivate Self-Confidence.

Dress and self-confidence go hand in hand. Self-confidence is the motive power that turns the wheels of success. Self-confidence is the knowledge that you can and will do whatever you happen to undertake. If you are deficient in self-confidence, you cannot expect to inspire it in others.

Safety First.

A grocer who was troubled with the toothache determined to have the offender extracted; but there being no dentist near, he resolved to do the job himself; whereupon he filled the excavation with powder, but being afraid to touch it off, he put a slow match to it, lighted it, and then ran around the corner to get out of the way.—Exchange.

Edible Seaweeds.

There are seaweeds which are good foods. The old folk in many British coast districts will recall much that is useful on the subject once their memories are set a-working. Those who live near the sea will certainly be wise to utilize the food wealth that it casts ashore, though with seaweeds, as with land weeds, some trouble should be taken beforehand to be quite sure about the identification of specimens.

Heat Stains on Wood.

To remove white stains made by heat or water from varnished surfaces one method is to apply olive oil or salt. Leave for half an hour, then wipe dry with a soft cloth. Another way is to wring a cloth out of boiling water. Place on the spot for an instant; remove and rub till dry with a soft dry cloth. Still another way is to use alcohol or camphor. Apply this quickly, then rub off.

Piano Playing.

No instrument has such a vast literature, as rich and voluminous, as the piano, and more people are teaching and studying it than any other instrument. The reason that, in spite of its popularity, there are only few who play it well and artistically is that the majority of people consider piano playing more as a means of amusement and a pleasant diversion than as a medium with which it is possible to produce the deepest feelings and the highest in art.
